

David Weed

David Weed is a Human Factors Research Specialist for the Cabin Safety Research Team at the FAA Civil Aerospace Medical Institute. He has a Master's Degree in Psychology with emphasis on research design, statistics, biosocial psychology, persuasive psychology, and a certification in information technology. His recent research topics include: graphical safety symbol perception and interpretation, aviation life-preserver retention and donning, and serious/informational/persuasive gaming technology.